This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.

+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.

+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.

+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

as manifested by these figures, and by the accompanying report of the Treasurer, which demonstrates that its financial resources are fully adequate to meet the increased burdens which will necessarily be incurred upon its entry into the New Club House, an event now certain to occur on the first day of March next.

The net surplus revenues of the Club for the year 1880 amount to the sum of $36,339.08.

During the year the Club has been deprived by death of an unusually large number of its members, among whom are many of the most respected and valuable names upon its roll. The list includes, of resident members, Charles C. Waite, Thomas L. Thorell, George A. Baker, Robert H. McCurdy, Elliot C. Cowdin, Samuel Osgood, Joseph Seligman, Andrew Findlay, Jr., George Opdyke, George A. Fellows, Joseph B. Kiddoo, William L. Chamberlain, Elam O. Potter, S. R. Gifford, Marshall O. Roberts, Samuel V. Hoffman, Erastus C. Benedict, Warren E. Greenleaf, James H. Pinkney, Nathaniel Fisher, William H. Meeker, and Benjamin K. Phelps, and of non-residents, William S. Eakin, George S. Collins, Charles A. Read, Edmund H. Sawyer, Horace J. Moody, Joseph Trumbull, Norman O. Lounsberry, A. T. A. Torbert, Calvin G. Child, O. G. Kimball, and John P. Jackson.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

REPORT

OF THE

Committee on Library and Publications.

The Library and Publication Committee respectfully presents its annual report as follows :

The Committee has, during the last year, expended for papers and periodicals, including $50 for subscription to the Mercantile Library..... $2,075 95
For the purchase of books..... 603 93
For Miscellaneous purposes..... 164 64

Total..... $2,844 52

—leaving an unexpended balance of the appropriation made to the Committee.

The papers and periodicals heretofore taken by the Club have been continued, and some additions have been made thereto.

There have been added to the Library during the year, exclusive of annuals and bound volumes of magazines, one hundred and sixty volumes, principally books of reference, history, biography, and travels.

Digitized by Google

The Club has been, for nearly a year, a subscriber to the Mercantile Library, receiving from that institution three books each week, and retaining them for three weeks. The members of the Club thus have an opportunity to read books of transient interest, or books which for any reason, the Club would not care to purchase.

The thanks of the Club are due to Mr. Dorman B. Eaton, Mr. S. E. Huntington, G. P. Putnam's Sons, Mr. J. F. Loubat, Hon. L. P. Morton, Hon. A. G. McCook, Mr. J. A. Briggs, and Mr. J. F. Fanning, for valuable donations to the Library during the last year.

It is with feelings of satisfaction that your Committee, from a somewhat careful and systematic observation, is able to report that the Library has, during the year, been much frequented, and that the number using it is steadily increasing. And the Committee express the hope that when the Library is lodged in the beautiful and commodious quarters prepared for it in the new Club House, it will become even more popular, and will be the object of a wise liberality on the part of the Club.

REPORT

OF THE

COMMITTEE ON ART, 1880.

The Committee on Art for 1880 have the honor to report :

The usual monthly exhibitions of oil paintings have been held, including the exhibit from the American Water Color Society, and in addition to these a collection of oil paintings was exhibited on the occasion of the reception of General Grant ; the average excellence of works here exhibited we believe has not only been maintained but we hope improved.

An exhibition of fifty-one (51) paintings by our late esteemed associate and member, Mr. Geo. A. Baker, took place at the November meeting, which exhibition comprised his earliest and latest works in portraiture, besides several ideal subjects.

A series of resolutions expressive of the sense of our loss in Mr. George A. Baker, was passed by your Committee, of which in former years he had been an active and valuable member, and an engrossed copy of those resolutions was sent to his family.

Your Committee have purchased two oil paintings, not yet fully completed; one by Mr. Jervis McEntee, of a characteristic American Autumn scene, and one by Mr. A. Wordsworth Thompson, of a Revolutionary incident upon Manhattan Island.

Digitized by Google

The expenses of your Committee have been—

Bills of 1879, paid by Committee of 1880.....	$220 00
Expenses of Exhibitions, printing, etc.....	526 00
For one oil painting, by Jervis McEntee	750 00
For one oil painting, by A. Wordsworth Thompson....	500 00
Total.....	$1,996 00

The last two amounts have not yet been paid out. In order that the collection of works of art owned shall be worthy the name and position of the Union League Club your Committee venture to express a hope that there will in future be larger appropriations than for the year just past; for the idea of some appropriate artistic memorial by Mr. Augustus St. Gaudens, at the corner of Fifth avenue and Thirty-ninth street, was thoroughly discussed and unanimously desired, but our limited appropriation rendered it impossible.

Respectfully submitted,

FRANK WALLER,
Secretary.

REPORT

COMMITTEE ON POLITICAL REFORM.

UNION LEAGUE CLUB,
January, 1881.

In submitting their annual report the Committee on Political Reform have to say that, for reasons hereafter suggested, their proceedings in the year just closed have not been marked by much activity or importance. Their action in opposition to the removal of the Murray Hill Reservoir, the resolutions upon the nomination of the Republican candidates for the presidency, and the valuable paper on the need of a substitution of specie for small bills, for which the Committee was indebted to Mr. George B. Butler, are most worthy of mention.

The time seems appropriate for submitting some observations bearing upon the functions of this Committee, which are also intimately connected with the future policy of the Club.

Few members can have failed to observe that, during several years last past, the Club has been in a state of transition. Its original and paramount pledge to do what it might to preserve the territorial integrity of the Union

and to re-invigorate the spirit of nationality and patriotism, having been honorably redeemed, it was not at once clear what were to be the spirit and aims of the Club in the future. There were some who thought that because its first mission was accomplished and the national exigency which gave it birth was passed, it should be dissolved. The great majority, who opposed this view, were by no means unanimous as to what should be the future character or policy of the Club. It was natural that, as national perils subsided and vital principles regained their power in public affairs, political questions should cease to be so absorbing and that the conditions of comfort and culture in club life should more and more attract attention. So strong was the tendency—or perhaps we should say the reaction—in these directions that, for a time, it was doubtful whether the Club would maintain any distinctive political activity or character, or whether—descending from the high plane of its birth—it would not subside to the common level of the merely social clubs of the city. Fortunately, grounds for solicitude on this point did not long continue. It soon become apparent that, while our members perceived that a successful club could not exist without a first-class cuisine and the ordinary social attractions in their best form, they were also resolved that the Club should make its appeal for membership on the higher grounds of taste and culture. This spirit found expression in a demand for paintings, statues, and engravings, which should fitly illustrate the artistic taste of the country; and also in a resolution to have a club library, wherein, within their own walls, members could find the best thoughts, both of the past and the present. From what has already been done in those directions, it may be regarded as certain that, in the spheres of taste and literature, this body will take rank upon the highest plane of club life as known in foreign countries.

The future then seems assured to this extent, that:

1. We are to have a first-class Club House.

2. We are to have a first-class cuisine.

3. We are to have opportunities most ample for billiards and kindred amusements.

4. We are to adorn and enrich our Club House with the works of the painter and the sculptor.

5. We are to have a good Club Library.

All these things the Committee think are indispensable to worthy success in a great club in times of peace.

It is an interesting fact, however, that not one of them was regarded in our more glorious period, and that only the two last are recognized in our charter as among the objects of the Club.

Such facts, however, only show that, in some respects, we have been growing broader and wiser. But it is further worthy of our notice that all those things present us in the aspect of seeking only to enjoy the fruits of the labor, the thought and the taste of others, and not as doing anything, or originating anything, or sacrificing anything among ourselves. This is an attitude and spirit in marked contrast with those which existed in the earlier periods of our club life, when to work, to think, to make exertions and sacrifices in the public interests, and to bend our energies and influence with patriotic vigor upon great national and political objects was the purpose and the life of the Union League Club.

Labors and sacrifices so unselfish and patriotic are by no means to be expected of the members of a club in the ordinary times of peace. It would doubtless be very unwise to attempt them. But, on the other hand, are we to utterly separate from the spirit and example of our earlier days? Are we to have no activity in the domain of politics or political science? Are we to make no systematic efforts to solve our political problems or to improve our political condition?

If, on the other hand, we are to have a political character and are to attempt the exertion of a political and social influence, in what way and through what agency is it to be done? Is it to be merely sporadic or emotional; or upon some sytematic plan, for the supervision of which designated members are to be responsible? Doubts on these points, and the apparent absence of any definite policy on the part of the Club, have much embarrassed the Committee on Political Reform. The need of having a clearly defined policy is the justification for this long report.

II. Where then do we stand, and what in the future is to be our attitude, in regard to politics and reform?

As we were gradually drifting from our early position

into one essentially social, artistic, and literary, the very few democrats among us very plausibly questioned the right of the Club to give active support to Republican principles. They denounced, as violations of club courtesy, whatever language in debate might be offensive to them. We need not point out how little could be done by this Committee, or how premature would have been the suggestions we are to make, while such views found support among our members. More and more emphatically of late, the Club has expressed its purpose to stand by Republican principles, until finally the resolution of November 10, 1880, was adopted, which appears to be in substance an instruction to the Committee on Admission that the support of Republican principles is hereafter to be one of the qualifications for membership. No action of the Club has been so radical as this, and from none have there been consequences so important as may naturally follow that resolution.

It is hardly conceivable that, without intending some marked change in policy and action, a club, with our history, would have imposed a party test of membership. What is to be the character of that change?

Three ways are open to us:

1. The way of the last three or four years, wherein doing little and contributing almost nothing in a political sense, we have stood condemned by the pledges of our constitution; or,

2. We may become exclusively a social, artistic and literary club; or,

Digitized by Google

3. We can go over to the opposite extreme and become a partisan club, doing the appropriate work of a partisan body; or,

4. Without being partisan, we can become active and liberal in support of sound republican principles, and a great power for the reforms to which we are pledged; and this, without neglecting art, literature, or social enjoyment.

A few words as to each of these theories of action:

1. If it be our intention, while not wholly ignoring politics, to do as little work and vote as little money in aid of the republican cause in the future as in the last few years, we hardly need keep out democrats; for nothing could give them more pleasure than to see the wealth and power of this great body made to remain nearly useless to their political opponents through the lethargy and neglect of its members.

2. The new political test of admission is hardly consistent with any theory of making the Club exclusively social, artistic, and literary; for even the most proscriptive republicans do not refuse to eat good dinners, play billiards, or smoke cigars with the most inveterate democrats; and, even if faith in democracy is by any republicans assumed to be incompatible with a taste for art or literature, that assumption would only justify us in expecting that few democrats would apply at our doors and not in rejecting those whose application would prove the assumption to be unfounded.

Digitized by Google

3. The new political test then would seem to imply a purpose of having more political life of some kind. It cannot be denied that such a test is, in theory at least, quite compatible with an intention to convert the Club into a partisan body. The Committee are far from believing that such was the intention; but the nature of their duties and, as they think, the interests of the Club, require that there shall not be any ground for doubt on that point.

If the Club is to become a partisan headquarters, for the management of politics and the conduct of campaigns, it will not be a Committee on Political Reform that you will need, nor will it be the discussion of political principles or the enforcement of political morality, upon which you will most bestow your attention.

You will need committees on the primaries, committees on the nomination of municipal, state, and federal officers; committees to collect assessments for campaign expenses; committees on patronage; committees on campaign work, and generally committees and methods of action which, on all grounds of partisan warfare, will have to confront Tammany Hall and the other halls of democracy. For if ever this Club shall become a strictly partisan body, it will be called upon to lead the republicans in the sense that Tammany Hall leads or has led the democrats. It must seek the greatest number of votes and to make patronage most effective, by all those partisan methods which—so often repugnant to the higher standards of political life—are generally incompatible with all the conditions of reform. They inevitably repel a large class of republicans who are most earnest in the support of the principles and the honor of their party.

4. But, the Committee do not think it needful (in view of the action of the Club to which they will now refer) to argue the question whether a club like this can safely or usefully change itself into a partisan body. We are pledged to a higher policy.

In 1876, the Club declared it would not be bound by the action of the State Convention, unless the delegates were unpacked and unpledged; and further declared that the presidential candidate must be a person "deservedly "recognized as a reformer as well as a republican."

By a resolution of 1864, the Club committed itself to the support of a reform of the civil service, and that pledge has since been several times renewed. In 1877, the Club adopted a report of this Committee which declared that "it will be more useful in the long range, "and more in harmony with the conditions on which a "club like this can prosper, to adhere to the advocacy of "sound principles and not take part in conducting the "canvass, however unsatisfactory, for the moment that "policy may be to the spirit of partisanship."

The fourth of the Articles of Association, upon which the Club rests, you will remember is in these words, "It "shall be the duty of the Club to resist and expose cor- "ruption and promote reform in our national, state, and "municipal affairs, and to elevate the idea of American "citizenship."

And you know that our by-laws declare that the Committee on Political Reform "shall have charge of all "matters coming under the fourth article," and authority to expend such sums of money as the executive may vote them; but you may not know that in later years this Committee has not had money enough to pay its postage.

In view of such pledges and precedents, the Committee must assume that the increased political activity which our new test of membership so plainly suggests, is to be, not in the direction of partisan politics, but of greater fidelity to the spirit and policy to which we are thus committed?

If there be any who dissent from this view, it may be prudent for them to carefully examine the first article of our charter, where the law defines our legitimate aims. The Club policy which such precedents illustrate we are compelled to think will be found more compatible with our charter, than will a policy which will change the Club into a partisan organization.

III. If from our history and our pledges we turn to consider what our party most needs, we must find it to be, not more management for gaining votes; not more manipulation for controlling elections; not more political assessments; not more patronage; not more power in the leaders or more servility in their followers; but more political courage and independence; more fidelity to sound principles; more free and open methods in party affairs; more public and confident appeals to the honesty and patriotism of the people; a more courageous exposure of abuses, and a more energetic expression of the reform sentiment of the nation.

In these last directions, the Committee think a Club like this may make itself a great power. A party must be strong, indeed, if it can afford to throw away the strength which fifteen hundred representatives of its higher character and intelligence—acting wisely together —can bring to the better forces of party politics in such a city as New York. The period when we are about to go into our new Club House would seem to be a fit time to enter upon a more active political life.

What then may the Club do, in the old spirit and in addition to the old methods of action? The Committee respectfully submit these three suggestions:

1. On two or three evenings of each year, a time may be assigned for hearing papers of not unreasonable length, specially invited from our members, on subjects of important practical interest in our politics or social life (for our charter says we may use "moral and social influences,"), the reading of such papers to be followed by a free discussion and by publication of the papers if of sufficient merit.

2. The Club may offer moderate prizes for the best essays upon one or more assigned subjects, involving some of our more serious and interesting political or social problems.

3. We may invite, in the course of each year, say two of our most eminent statesmen or thinkers on political or social questions, to speak on national subjects in our

Hall at some assigned times; the hall to be opened to our friends, or even to the public generally, if it be not otherwise likely to be filled. The Committee think that these forms of activity, while imparting a new and higher interest to the internal life of the Club, would tend to draw to it the best class of membership and to increase its salutary influence with the public, both in our midst and throughout the Union. The money that need be expended in these new methods would be very small compared with that expended upon books and works of art; and they think the political condition of the country calls for such expenditure at the hands of a club that has declared in the foreground of its constitution its purpose "to oppose corruption," "to promote reforms," and "to elevate the idea of American citizenship." The fact that for years we have hardly expended a dollar for such purposes would seem to be a poor reason for doing no better in the future.

If any of these suggestions should be approved, you may intrust a competent Committee on Political Reform to take the practical measures needful for carrying them into effect.

It is hardly worth while for the Committee to attempt to anticipate objections, which should rather be met when made. There may be those who, on principle, object to having any political discussions or politics in a club.

If so, such persons ought at once to bring about a repeal of the new political test of membership, which makes a more intense political action of some kind inevitable.

Editors and some others, who hear much of politics during the day, may, naturally enough, desire exemption at this Club in the evening; but over against them must be set many more, whom business details absorb, and whose political opportunities are in no small measure at the Club. Those who prefer the social life of the Club to anything that may be said in the Hall, need not be disturbed in their own mode of enjoyment; but, surely, they can hardly consider it a calamity that among their fellow members are those who take a deep interest in the social and political problems of the day, and find pleasure and instruction in hearing them discussed.

Political and social discussions, as regular occupations, may be as unsatisfactory as smoking cigars, playing billiards or retailing gossip; and yet may be as acceptable occasionally; and perhaps in the long run they are almost as useful to an individual or a nation.

A wise and just Club will not needlessly driscriminate for or against the preferences of any body of its members, but in a broad and liberal spirit, will try to make its opportunities satisfactory to all, by extending them, if it may, over the whole range of rational enjoyment.

And especially will a Club, rich in its records of liberal and patriotic devotion and pledged to a reforming and disinterested spirit, take care to supply that element which most concerns the highest duties of its members and most advances the best interests of the country.

There may be a few—perhaps more than the Committee suppose—who are ready to declare themselves tired of the very name of reform and of all talk and action under its banner. It is not the purpose of the Committee to find fault with such opinions or feelings. That the political condition, at our very doors even, is one which a patriot and a republican may pardonably wish to improve, is surely not to be questioned; but every member has the right to decide for himself what efforts or sacrifices for the common good he will make. That party in Great Britain which is most in sympathy with republican principles is represented by a great organization known the world over as the Reform Club.

But we are not the less at liberty to repeal our fourth article, to abolish the Committee on Political Reform, to eject the word "reform" from our constitution, and to repudiate all pretense of a reforming and patriotic purpose—if we feel unwilling to support the standard of our pledges and our history. It is surely more manly to go into our new edifice with a banner and a constitution which truly reflect our sentiments on these subjects, whatever they may be, than to uphold a standard which is a false pretense.

The Committee have believed that the Club is ready for broader and more vigorous action in the highest sphere of politics, which will make it once more a powerful influence in behalf of political morality and sound republican principles.

They think that the temper and tendency of the public mind, the possibilities of long enduring supremacy in the republican party, and the conditions of our own highest prosperity, altogether invite this Club not only to make itself attractive to all lovers of art, literature and good cheer, but to extend the broadest hospitality and the largest encouragement practicable to every republican who has anything wise and effective to say in aid of the purity and the principles of that party from which our future membership must be drawn and in the character of which the best interests of the nation are involved.

Two negative votes in the Committee shall prevent the recommendation of any person for membership. The Committee shall fix its own place and time of meeting. At every monthly meeting the Committee shall report the names of such persons proposed as they recommend for admission; the names of persons proposed as resident members in one list, and the names of those proposed as non-resident members in a separate list, and the Club shall thereupon proceed to vote, by ballot, upon the names so recommended. Negative votes to the number of one-third of those cast shall exclude any person. Members shall be elected only at the regular monthly meetings, but any person elected as a non-resident member may at any time be classed as a resident member, by signifying his intention to that effect to the Treasurer and paying the balance of the admission fee of a resident member, and he shall thenceforth pay the full annual dues.

9. No person shall be proposed or admitted to be a member of the Club who is not at the time a citizen of the United States, having the right to vote, and who does not answer to the following requirement of the original Articles of Association of the Club:

And every person elected a member shall pledge himself to do all in his power to carry out the primary objects of the Club, which are to discountenance and rebuke by moral and social influences, and by all proper means, both in public and private, all disloyalty to the Federal Government, and to resist to the uttermost every attempt against the territorial integrity of the nation.

10. No candidate who shall have failed to be elected by the Club shall be again proposed for one year, except upon the recommendation of the Executive Committee, such recommendation to be posted at least two weeks prior to a monthly meeting.

If any person elected shall not, within three months after notice of his election, left at or sent to his address, as specified by the member proposing him, signify his acceptance and pay his admission fee and annual dues, he shall be deemed to have declined to become a member.

11. The Committee on Library and Publications shall consist of seven members, and shall have charge of the Library and Reading Room, with authority to expend such sums of money upon the same as may be voted therefor by the Executive Committee, or procured by voluntary subscription.

15. The Finance Committee shall consist of five members, none of whom shall at the time of their election be members of the Executive Committee. They shall be elected by the Club by ballot at a regular meeting thereof, and only upon the nomination of the Executive Committee, which nomination shall be made at a regular meeting previous to that at which such election takes place ; except that the first members of the said Committee shall be the five persons who, on the first day of May, 1879, were the Trustees of the Building Fund under the former 15th By-Law.

The members of said Committee shall hold their offices until death, resignation, or removal for cause, and every vacancy occurring in the said Committee shall be filled by the Club on the nomination of the Executive Committee, in the same manner and under the same restrictions as hereinbefore provided.

The Treasurer of the Club shall forthwith pay and deliver to the said Committee all the moneys and securities received by him from the Trustees of the Building Fund; and shall at the end of each year pay over to the said Committee all surplus and unappropriated moneys which remain in his hands after payment in full of the disbursements and expenses of such year.

The moneys, the securities, and the proceeds of the securities so received by the said Finance Committee, shall be applied, so far as the same shall be necessary, to the building, finishing, and furnishing of the Club-house, at the corner of Fifth avenue and Thirty-ninth street, in the city of New York, and for that purpose shall be paid out by the said Finance Committee, as required, pursuant to the appropriations and regulations of the General Building Committee, upon the drafts of the Treasurer of said Committee. Except so far as they may be required from time to time to meet drafts by the said Treasurer, made or about to be made under then existing appropriations of the General Building Committee, the said funds, and all income, interest, and profits from time to time arising therefrom, shall be kept invested in the securities of the United States or of the State of New York. There shall be, until the said Club-house is erected, finished, and furnished, a Special Committee, herein designated as the General Building Committee, which shall be composed of the twenty-three persons now and heretofore acting as members of such Committee, and shall have general control, direction, and management of the building, finishing, and furnishing of the said Club-house, with power for that purpose to make contracts and appropriations of the funds in the hands, or under the control, of the Finance Committee. It shall have power to fill vacancies in its membership.

16. Any officer may be removed for cause, at any meeting of the Club, upon two weeks' notice, and any vacancy in any office may be filled for the residue of the term by the Club, at any meeting thereof, except as herein otherwise provided.

Neglect on the part of any member of a Standing or

And upon the coming in of such report, the same, and the resolutions, and the subject referred to, shall be deemed before the Club for discussion and action thereon, without further right of such objection.

28. Should such information or request be disregarded, the Executive Committee shall refer the matter to the next stated meeting of the Club, or to a special meeting thereof; of which reference not less than two weeks' written notice shall be given to the offending member.

29. At such meeting the nature of the offense shall be considered, and the member complained of may be censured or expelled by a vote of a majority of the members present. A motion involving censure or expulsion shall be decided by ballot.

No person shall be elected as a non-resident member when his admission would increase the number of non-resident members above five hundred.
